POETRY

THE CROOKED RIVER.
You slip from the lake bed, young and slender,
The trees o'ershadow, the valley calls;
At first there seems but a meek surrender
To simple pathway and hedging walls.
But soon, you wayward, you strong-willed river without a hum:
You turn, you make a path of your own;
The alders whisper, the rushes quiver,
You speak to shallows, to these alone.
You twisting river, you twisting river,
Why should you double and curl forever?
As if there was no further to roam!
Because we know that the urge is within you,
The call, the grasp of a net that somewhere beyond is the place to win you.
'Tis only a coward's foot that lags,
In shanty coves that your ways discover.
You won white lilies to come to light,
Here in the dark Dame Nature wore
Waters, cold petals for our delight.
And if God fashions in highest Heaven
A fairer flower for angel eyes,
We do not care, unto us is given
Sufficient beauty till earth slight dies.
But, oh, river, you lovely river,
You river that call the star shine down,
You who lift the heart in a brave endeavor
To wear unshrinking its "sorrow"
—M. L. Barnard, in the New York Sun.

These who enjoy fun and good singing will give approval to the musical comedy Patsy the Bellhop at the Auditorium theatre. Yesterday's audience were quick to recognize the comedy and singing. The comedians are good and their many stunts kept the audience in roars of laughter. Special hits were scored by the comedians and the chorus is up to the newest stagecraft in late melodies. The same comedy will be repeated today, with a complete change on Wednesday. The feature picture when a Woman Sings is a wonderful picture, with both the acting and settings were excellent. The Kinograph shows Caruso and other operatic stars in a series of short films. This film is very interesting. When Harolds Elms, a new Christie comedy, kept the fun wheel in action, it was a good program, well worth seeing.

Alcohol in the Industries

The regulations of the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue controlling the use of grain alcohol in the industries are awaited by many manufacturers with unusual interest at this time. The new regulations, which are twenty-five denaturing formulas provided for the use of authorized agents only, but these are not adapted to all industries. A new formula has recently been authorized for denaturing alcohol used in manufacturing tooth paste and efforts are being made by the Bureau to secure increased use of the denatured product in order to effect the Government's loss of revenue from liquor and to the enforcement of prohibition.
The regulations must be liberal, while preserving the intent of the law, in order to allow manufacturers to keep their production costs as low as possible. It must be borne in mind that Canadian manufacturers have free access to the market, and the cost of many preparations. It counts in the export business, particularly because in spite of the drawback law in this country, the American exporter is handicapped in competing for trade. In normal times, when alcohol is sold at $2.25 per gallon, which included the revenue tax of $2.00 per gallon, the cost of production, minus the tax of about 45 cents per gallon, allowing for a reasonable profit. The revenue tax burden must be considered if manufacturers are to be called upon to come to the government's rescue by using larger supplies of industrial alcohol, especially if they are engaged in export business. The drawback system of customers laws has never been satisfactory and should be modified and amended. It is said that claims for drawback often remain unpaid for three to six months.
